

Jack in the Box

Jack in the Box, still as a mouse,
Deep down inside your wee little house.
Jack in the Box, resting so still ,
Will you come out?
Yes, I will!

Bears are Sleeping (Frere Jacques)

Bears are sleeping (repeat)
In their den (repeat)
Soon it will be springtime (repeat)
Wake up, Bears! (repeat)
Children growl as the "wake"

Follow, Follow, Follow (I Had A Little Turtle)

Follow, follow, follow,
Follow, follow, me.
If you will be following,
This is where you'll be.

Mitch the Fish

Once there was a fish named Mitch who could change his color with a swish of his tail.
All he had to say was:

"I'm Mitch the fish.
I swim and I swish.
And I can change my color
If I wish." **

One day he was swimming around on the ocean floor and saw a red lobster. He thought it would be fun to be a bright color like the lobster so he said:

Repeat

Suddenly he turned red. The lobster said, "I'm the only sea creature who can be red. I'll snap at you!" So Mitch decided he didn't want to be red anymore. Just then he saw a yellow starfish, so he said:

Repeat

And with a swish Mitch turned yellow. The starfish said, "I'm the only sea creature who can be yellow. I'll prickle you!" So Mitch decided he didn't want to be yellow anymore. Just then Mitch saw a blue whale, so he said:

Repeat

And with a swish, Mitch turned blue. The whale said, "I'm the only sea creature that can be blue. If you don't change, I'll spout water on you." So Mitch decided he didn't want to be blue anymore. Mitch thought and thought and finally said to himself:

"I'm Mitch the fish.
I swim and I swish.
And I can change my color
If I wish.
But after looking around,
The truth I have found,
Being my own color
Is the wish of this fish!"
